Results:

Question 1. How much time do you spend on the Internet each day?

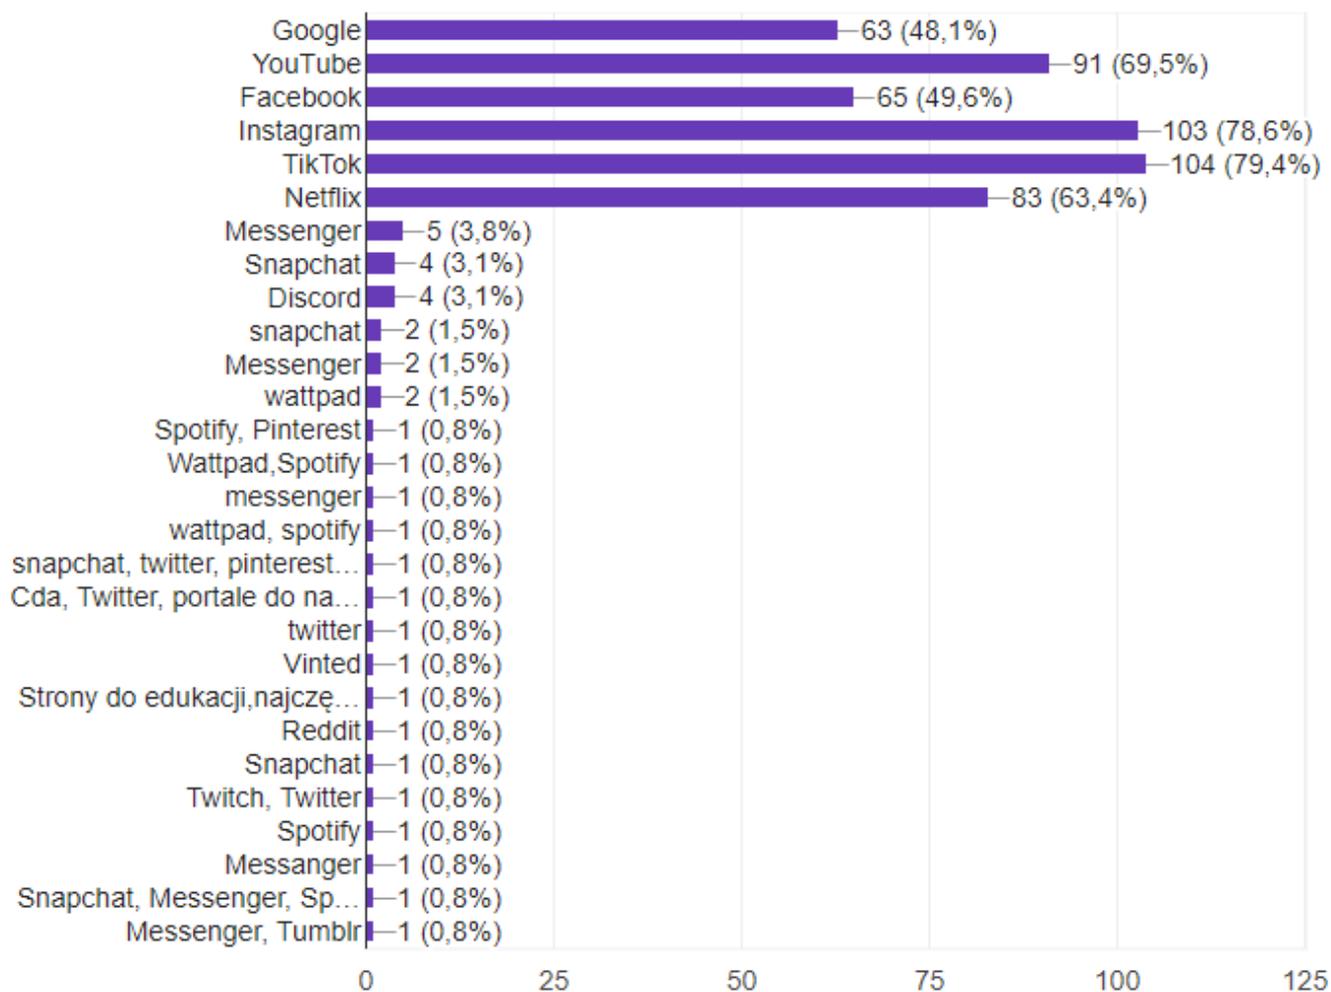

The majority of students admitted that they spend online more than 4 hours each day (63,4% of our responders; orange colour on the pie chart above); 34,4% said they use the Internet for 2-4 hours (red colour). The least popular answer was 'Less than 2 hours' as only 3 students chose this option (blue colour).

Question 2. What do you use the Internet for?

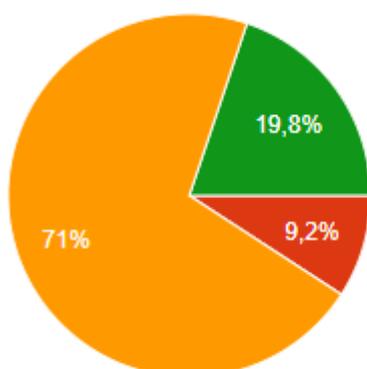

The two most popular answers, which clearly stand out from the other options, were: 'Chatting with friends' and 'Checking my social media' (91,7% and 83,3% respectively). The third popular choice was: 'Watching films' (77,3%). 'Studying' was chosen by 61,4%; 'Doing the shopping' by 44,7%; 'Playing games' by 39,4%. 'Checking my mailbox' came last with 20,5%.

Question 3. What websites /apps do you use most often? (You can choose a few options)

The most popular and frequently used sites / apps are: TikTok, Instagram, and YouTube. They also use Netflix, Facebook, and Google a lot. The students enumerated other sites they use regularly (e.g. Messenger, Spotify, Snapchat, Wattpad). Websites that help them with studying and education constitute only 0,8% of their preferences.

Question 4. Do you have clearly defined rules of using the Internet at home?

- Tak, mam ograniczony zakres do pewnych stron
- Tak, mam limit czasu korzystania z Internetu
- Nie, rodzice/opiekunowie mi ufają i nie kontrolują mojej aktywności w Internecie
- Nie, w ogóle o tym nie rozmawiamy

Most of the responders claimed that they neither have strict rules nor are controlled because their parents trust them (71% of votes; orange colour). The second answer was 'No, we don't talk about it at all' – 19,8% (green colour). Only 9,2% said they have a set time-limit (red colour). The option 'Yes, I have a limited access to certain websites' wasn't chosen by anybody.

Question 5. Do you feel safe online?

Students declared that they generally feel safe (38,9%; orange colour); 29,8% stated they feel safe and have never experienced any unpleasantness. However, 29% admitted that they feel safe but have encountered some nuisances. 'Sometimes' was pointed out by 2 students (green colour) and 'I hardly feel safe' by 1 person (purple). Nobody chose the last option 'No, I find the Internet a threat and a dangerous place'.

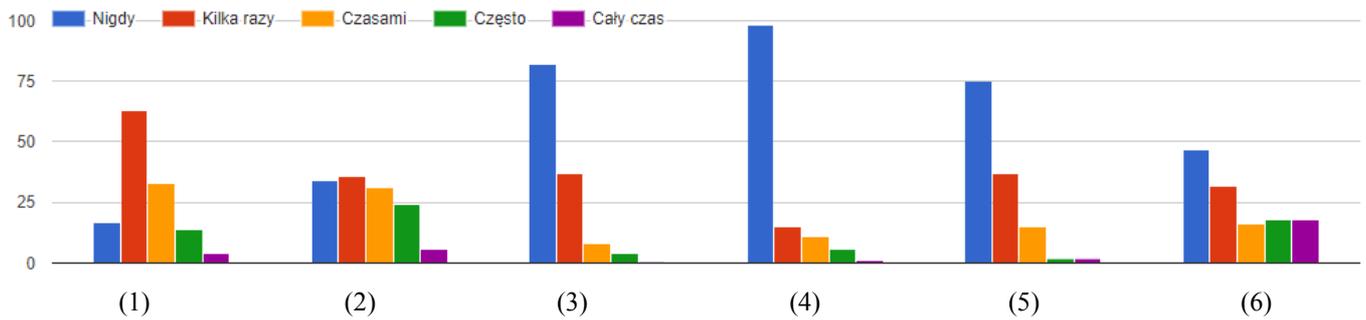

Students who feel safe said it's so because they:

- don't share private information, personal data or photos (the most common answer)
- are careful and alert
- check everything twice
- use safe and trusted sites
- don't click on unknown links
- use anti-virus software, and VPN
- are careful with their passwords (they use strong ones, change them from time to time and don't save them)

People who don't feel entirely safe claimed so because:

- they are afraid of scammers or other people's comments
- somebody broke into their accounts
- they are scared that someone might break into their accounts
- they cannot be always sure who they're talking to
- people on the Internet can be nasty and mean

Conclusions:

From the students' declarations included in the survey, it can be concluded that, on the whole, they feel safe online (however, a few teenagers confessed they experienced, saw, or read things that upset them) and know the basic rules of maintaining that security, such as: not talking to unknown people, not sharing private data, protecting passwords, not clicking on suspicious links. Although their parents didn't set the strict rules on the Internet use nor monitor their activity online, they generally know what their children do online and trust them.

According to the survey's results, the Internet plays a great and important role in our students' lives - especially in a social context as they mainly use it to communicate with friends and to check social media. However, they also claimed that they prefer face-to-face meetings in reality rather than the virtual ones, which can mean that relationships and contact with real people are still crucial and substantial to them. The responders said that they use the Internet for educational purposes too – yet, not even 1% of such websites was mentioned in the ones frequently used by them.

Our teenagers spend online more than 4 hours every day.

Most of the students seem to know how to behave responsibly as they didn't admit to overlooking or disregarding their duties because of the Internet. Additionally, they don't agree with the statement that they wake up at nights only to check what's happening online.
